Efficiency is charged by Commissioner Soderberg in His Explanation of Action in Discharging Manager

Former City Employee Will Appeal Decision in Five Days Allowed by Charter, He Says of Plan for Fight

George Keefe, for a number of years manager of the Oakland Auditorium, was removed from his position today by Commissioner of Public Works Frederick Soderberg. Soderberg sent Keefe a letter notifying him of his discharge, and saying that the action was taken because Keefe had been inefficient in his management and had not performed his duties in the office satisfactorily. Keefe said today that he will appeal to the civil service board within the five days fixed by the city charter for such appeal to be filed. He said that further than that, he did not care to discuss the action of Commissioner Soderberg.

Some time ago it became known that Commissioner Soderberg was conducting an investigation into the manner in which the auditorium has been conducted. Several employees were examined, as were a number of persons who have rented the auditorium from time to time. Questions as to the propriety of certain arrangements that had been made with concessionaires were taken up. It is understood, and Keefe said, that the auditorium has been placed.

While the investigation was in progress Keefe said that he did not understand the purpose of it, if it was supposed to intimate that there was anything criminally wrong about the contracts as every contract had to be signed by Commissioner Soderberg before it became effective, and that the commissioner was in possession of all the circumstances before he signed the contract.

Godfather of Romance Is Immigration Bureau's Role

BY UNITED PRESS. LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE. WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The immigration bureau was seen in a new role today, that of a beneficent godfather of romance. The immigration authorities, it was announced, have decided to admit to this country Emily K. Knowles, a 22-year-old English girl, and her baby, which is said to be the child of Perley Spiker of Baltimore. The admittance, however, is temporary, and at the end of three months the case will be taken up again.

If during the three months Miss Knowles marries Guy Spiker, brother of Perley, she will be allowed to remain permanently in this country, it was learned. NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—A new love story, an aftermath of the war, exceeding in its manifestations the most daring writer, has been revealed, proceedings to bring to this country Miss Emily Knowles, a young English girl, and her three-month-old baby. Miss Knowles and her child have come here on the invitation of Guy Spiker, brother of Perley Spiker of Baltimore, wife of the girl's sweetheart, Mrs. Spiker. In an affidavit, declares her willingness to take into her home the girl and baby who have been detained at Ellis Island since Jan. 15. She is leading the legal fight to gain them admittance to this country.

BROTHER WILLING TO MARRY GIRL. Perley Spiker, the husband-sweetheart and former aviator in the American expeditionary forces, wishes to adopt the child. His brother, Guy S. Spiker, is to marry Miss Knowles, although he has never seen her. Miss Knowles and the baby, traveling on money furnished by Mrs.

Spiker, arrived here on the Lapland. They were barred by immigration authorities. A special board of inquiry confirmed this action. Then the Spikers appealed to the immigration board in Washington.

"I have been informed of all the conditions of my husband's friendship with Miss Knowles while he was in an aviation training camp in England in 1918," Mrs. Spiker said in her affidavit. "I would welcome her to my home. It would have been my wish if Miss Knowles should come to reside in our home. On the contrary, I would be glad to see her come to the home of my husband and his wife, who now makes his home with us."

The brother, in his affidavit says: "I am perfectly willing to marry her. I would welcome her as long as I live, for I know that her moral character is good."

Shortly before noon Byron H. Uhl, acting commissioner of immigration at Ellis Island, received a telegram from the Washington bureau, directing that Miss Knowles be released on $1000 bond and sent to her friends in William and Kate Buttery of Fall River, Mass.

The Butterlys had not previously been mentioned in the case and Uhl said he was mystified by the message. He said he could not be reached before late today or Monday.

Bandit Loots Overland Limited Mail and Escapes With $200,000

BY UNITED PRESS. LEASED WIRE TO TRIBUNE. OMAHA, Jan. 31.—A bandit, unmasked, and operating with a small force of men, last night robbed the mail coach of the Union Pacific Overland Limited train between Fremont, Neb., and Omaha, and escaped with mail supposed to run into thousands of dollars.

The bandit is believed to have netted $200,000 in Liberty bonds and other valuables by the haul. No correct estimate of the loss can be made by postoffice officials.

Most of the valuables were from points on the Pacific Coast. It is said. The bandit tossed one sack containing $10,000 in Liberty bonds in a corner of the car, evidently not caring for such small loot.

One suspect, a former railroad man, has been arrested. Postoffice officials refuse to divulge his name until they have made a thorough investigation.

The robber was making his escape he dropped his revolver in the car. It was found to be a 38-caliber automatic and never had been loaded.

The bandit boarded the train as it was leaving Fremont. He locked six mail clerks in the baggage car and systematically looted the registered mail. He overlooked one sack containing $8000 in Liberty bonds, which was in the baggage car.

Postal authorities this morning were unable to estimate the amount of the loss. The robbery was not discovered until the train reached Omaha and the mail clerks were released from their prison. It is believed the robber swung off the train as it neared Omaha.

MILITARISM RUNS MAD IN ARMY BILL

Senators McKellar and Shepard Declare in Report Reorganization Plan Would Make President the Dictator

Assertion is Made Military Establishment Would Cost Uncle Sam More Than One Billion Dollars Annually

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—The army reorganization bill, with its compulsory military training provision rejected by the Senate military committee, not only will cost the taxpayers more than a billion dollars annually, but will result in "militarism run mad," said a minority report filed in the Senate today by Senator McKellar, Democrat, of Tennessee.

The report, which was concurred in by Senator Shepard, Democrat, Texas, said the measure would give the President war powers and make him virtually a dictator in peace time.

The committee submitted a report "that the passage of this bill will be to institute in this country a military system of the first order. Indeed, it will be militarism run mad, a militarism never dreamed of by our forefathers, a militarism that is wholly unnecessary, a militarism that cannot be defended, a militarism that is wholly unjustified."

Estimates made by Chairman Wadsworth that the bill with the compulsory military training plan would cost more than approximately $600,000,000 annually were incorrect, Senators McKellar and Shepard said, declaring the military establishment would cost nearly $1,162,073,000 annually.

RUIN PREDICTED IF FOREIGN LOANS GO ON. Further loans to foreign nations by the United States will ruin Europe and result in ruin for this country, Senator Shepard of California declared to the Senate today during a general discussion of the measure.

Postal authorities this morning were unable to estimate the amount of the loss. The robbery was not discovered until the train reached Omaha and the mail clerks were released from their prison. It is believed the robber swung off the train as it neared Omaha.

WIFE SWEATS HUSBAND. NEW YORK, Jan. 31.—Mrs. McCormick testified today that she was standing by the living-room window in the house with Mrs. Wilson when McCormick went down to Brown's cabin that morning.

"I saw him come out of the cabin first, walking backwards with his hands on the sides of the door," said Mrs. McCormick. "Then I saw my husband come out, and he had walking about thirty feet I saw him pull out his handkerchief. Just then I saw Brown come out and I thought he called to Frank, although I could not hear."

"The trunk was in the hall and then ran behind the automobile. Just then Brown fired at him. I ran out to the porch and heard Frank call to his sister. I called to her to go to the kitchen and get a glass of water. She ran to the kitchen and then I saw Frank go down the stairs. I couldn't see my husband, but saw Brown in front of the feed-house door. I ran to him and put my hand on his arm, and said, 'Please, Charlie, don't shoot again.' He pushed me off and fired again at the feed-house. Then I heard another shot and Brown fell."

"My husband came out of the feed-house. I saw that he was hurt and that there was blood all over his face and I went right to him." Coroner Frank Lipp testified that when he found the rifle on the Wilson ranch there was a bullet in the trigger and grip. He said that he did not wash it and that Sheriff McCoy next had it in his possession and he could not account for the disappearance of the blood stains.

This will be a point of contention in the trial as tending to prove or disprove the testimony of McCormick that he shot Brown after the latter had sent a bullet through McCormick's jaw.

Two Women Granted Pleas for Divorce

Mrs. Hansine Albertson, who after nineteen years of married life, was charged by Lauris Albertson with being unable to fill the duties of a wife, was today granted an interlocutory decree of divorce by Judge Koford, on her cross complaint with $40 a month alimony.

Mrs. Albertson alleged that her husband's charges and gossip had caused her considerable humiliation and shame. The husband sued for an annulment.

Mrs. Jennie H. Bork was granted an interlocutory decree of divorce after a compromise in which Louis F. C. Bork, employed by the Judson Manufacturing Co., dropped his cross complaint and the wife

BARBER CHARGES RAISE UNLIKELY

Barbers of the Eastway district will not increase their prices unless forced to do so by a strike of the journeymen barbers and even if they are forced to increase the journeymen's pay they will not advance the charges for haircutting or shaving. This was the statement made this morning by E. C. Benson, secretary of the Alameda County Master Barbers' Association, in commenting on reports that barbers had decided on an increase in prices.

Benson said further that the employing barbers had heard unofficially that the journeymen barbers intended to present demands for increased wages soon. This report this morning was denied by Edgar Hurley and William C. Spomer of the executive committee of the Central Labor Council, who said that the barbers would confer with the council before presenting their demands to the employing barbers. However, they admit that the journeymen barbers may contemplate making demands.

In the event that the master barbers are forced to increase the pay of the journeymen, they will increase prices to make up the difference but, according to Benson, hope to be able to do this by increasing the prices on tonic, massage and shampoo treatment without increasing the present rate of 50 cents and 25 cents for haircutting and shaving respectively.

Bride Appeals to Mayor to Find Wandering Bridegroom

His name is Ben Duke, and according to a letter received this morning by Mayor Davis, Ben is Oakland's finest example of the man who doesn't know where he is going but who is on his way. Ben and his motorcycle are headed south; and it is the opinion of Mrs. Ben Duke, of the Key Route Inn, that Ben and his chug machine are still going, so Mayor Davis has been appealed to.

In her letter to the mayor, Mrs. Duke says that Ben left home two months ago. They had been married just four months.

He turned his entire bank account over to his wife, kissed her an affectionate goodbye and departed.

There had never been a cross word or look between us. He was an ideal husband," said Mrs. Duke in her letter, "and just think, our honeymoon was scarcely over."

Mrs. Duke says that Ben told her he was about to depart, that when he had found the particular El Dorado that suited him he would send for her. She has had fragmentary roadside bulletins from him as he passed through Bakersfield, Los Angeles and way points. The last letter, received on December 12, was from Tijuana, Mexico.

Mayor Davis has referred the matter to the police.

"Of course we'll do all we can," said Chief Lynch, "but in the meantime Ben appears to be headed south—and seems to be still going."

"SAILING ORDERS"
If you're weary of the office and your step has lost its snap, if you're looking for a life that fits a big, two-fisted chap—if you want to go a-roving, All this jolly old world round, Come a-runnin', runnin', buddy. When the bugle starts to sound.

For we've got our sailing orders, And there's joy in all our hearts—O, we're dropping down the river. And it's hey for foreign parts! It's hey for Guam and Haiti And the beach at Waukiki! The Marines have got their orders, And they're putting out to sea.

If you're tired of the factory Or you're weary of the plow, And you don't find any romance In the job you're doing now, Here's a chance to go a-roving To the place Adventure's found, So come a-runnin', buddy. When you hear the bugles sound.

They're cheering from the ferries, And they're waving from the shore; The dull old life behind us And the new life lies before. We're off to make talk "nowdy" With the Moro and Chinese. The Marines have got their orders, And they're putting out to sea.

The young man who has not felt the call of the sea who has never known the "wanderlust"—that restless hunger for the sight of strange foreign lands and stranger people—he does not exist. But how many men neglect their opportunities and grow old without ever having wandered very far from their own home towns.

What have such men gotten out of life? What have they to look back on but a monotonous round of uninteresting toil? How they must envy their more fortunate—or perhaps more daring—fellows who have traveled and seen and done—who have lived life to the full!

How the "stay-at-home" must regret his lack of enterprise, as he sits one of an interested group while some ex-Marine spins yarn after yarn (and true yarns they are, too) of his adventures on seas and under tropic skies.

The Marine and the Wide World
At the moment you are reading this there is hardly a country on earth where there are not United States Marines doing men's work—yes, and playing, too, as real men play—storing up health and memories that will last them to the end of the chapter.

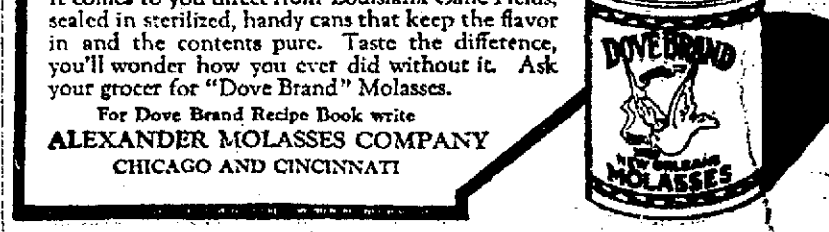

There are Marines down in Cuba, picturesque old Cuba, almost as Spanish today as when the red and yellow flag of Spain waved over the castle. In Haiti—the queer little republic, where the colored folk speak French—Marines are helping to stop bad little bandits on the wrist when they misbehave. That's life—life with just enough danger in it to make it worth the living.

There are Marines walking the streets of London and Paris. They are hearing real ukeleles on a real beach at Waukiki. They are in the Philippines and "somewhere east of Suez," where Mr. Kipling tells us "there ain't no ten commandments and a man can raise a 'thrit." Maybe it isn't as bad as that, but the Orient is mighty interesting.

An honorable discharge after two, three or four years' service in the Marines is the best letter of recommendation any man can have.

The Marine Corps wants only GOOD men, but they don't have to be scientists, just ordinarily healthy. Don't say, "I can't pass the test," until you have tried. The doctors are kindly and courteous. Give them a chance to look you over. Send for booklet.

The Chance that the Army Offers YOU

"As a corporal I was drawing down $38.10 a month every time the bugles blew 'Pay Day'."

"And when I read in the papers about the big civilian pay envelopes, civil life opportunities looked pretty good to me!

"I took up my old job when I got back and when then they raised my pay to $55.00 a week—almost as much as I got every month in the Army—well, I thought I was sitting on the world."

"But times have certainly changed! Thirty-five a week today goes like a breeze. Food has advanced, shoes cost more, and every time I buy a suit I think I'm paying for the war as well as fighting it."

"I'm classed, I guess, as just an unskilled worker, I left school too early and I'm sorry for it now."

"And where'll I be ten years from now? Answer me that! Working for day wages, making a living and nothing more? I guess not—for I'm going back to join the Army!"

"I'm going to take a job that will give me more free cash than I get today—a job that'll mean all my expenses paid—a training that will make me the kind of man who succeeds and a life that'll keep me feeling fit and fine."

Health, Travel and Training

Congress has appropriated $2,000,000.00 to be used in the Army Schools. In many schools and posts you will have the opportunity of being trained in the skilled trades and at practically all Army stations, schools are in operation in which you can improve your education.

You'll have enough out-door work to keep you in perfect trim. You'll learn the sort of discipline that makes a man able to handle other men. You'll have a fine crowd of buddies. You'll live a fine healthy life—no soft snap about it, but it will be a life that'll make you a regular man.

You'll learn how to hold up your end in any company. You'll have an increased ability—some self-confidence on your return.

You'll be a part of America—one of its fighting men—its bulwarks of defense. If there's any trouble that the Army has to settle you'll have a red-blooded man's chance to do your share of the settling.

And three years from now, when the men who are working besides you now are still working for day wages, you will step out with a training that will command real money.

Think it over. The next three years at home; and no further along at the end.

Or the next three years in the Army, and a training that you can cash in on for the rest of your life. It's worth investigating, isn't it? Worth stopping in at the recruiting office to talk to the man in charge.

ESCAPED AN OPERATION

By Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Many Such Cases.

Cairo, Ill. "Sometime ago I got so bad with female trouble that I thought I would have to be operated on. I had bad displacement. My right side would pain me and I was so nervous I could not hold a glass of water. Many times I would have to stop my work and sit down or I would faint. I consulted several doctors and every one told me the same but I kept fighting to keep from having the operation. I had read so many times of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it helped my sister so I began taking it. I have since then and I keep house and am able to do all my work. The Vegetable Compound is certainly one grand medicine." Mrs. J. L. McGraw, 6311 Sycamore Street, Cairo, Ill.

Of course there are many serious cases that only a surgical operation will relieve. We freely acknowledge this, but the above letter, and many others like it, amply prove that many operations are recommended when medicine in many cases is all that is needed.

Bedtime Story

By HOWARD R. GARIS

"Um! Um! What's that good smell?" cried Uncle Wiggly Longears, as the bunny rabbit gentleman hopped up the steps of his hollow stump bungalow one day.

"Why, I don't smell anything, so very extra good, especially fine," answered Nurse Jane Fussy Wuzzey, the muskrat lady housekeeper, as she saw Uncle Wiggly's pink nose twinkling as if it wanted to dance the Skilligimik shuffle.

"Dear me!" went on the bunny rabbit, "I certainly do smell something very good! Is it possible, Nurse Jane, that you don't?"

"Oh, I guess you smell the doughnuts I'm making," said the muskrat lady with a laugh. "I'd forgotten about them."

"Are you making doughnuts?" asked Uncle Wiggly, surreptitiously like and insinuatingly.

"I'm making 'em," said the muskrat lady, "and the doughnuts will soon be done. Perhaps you'd like to take a few, not ones to Grandpa Goosey Gander."

"I most certainly would," answered the bunny. And when the doughnuts were done, Nurse Jane put some of them, all crispy brown and as sweet smelling as a bottle of woodland perfume, on a plate, covered them with a clean napkin and handed them to Uncle Wiggly.

"Take them to Grandpa Goosey," she said, "and when you come home there will be more doughnuts for you."

"Oh, joy!" exclaimed Uncle Wiggly, simple like and unpretending. And he twinkled his pink nose.

Off through the woods hopped Uncle Wiggly, carrying the plate of nice, fresh doughnuts that Nurse Jane had baked. The bunny rabbit was thinking how good his own doughnuts would taste, when, all of a sudden, out from behind a mossy flower, jumped the bad old fox.

"Oh, ho! Oh, ho!" barked the fox, like an ampy dog. "Once again I have caught you, Uncle Wiggly! And this time there is no Mrs. Spin-Spin, or other doughnuts we are a web around me as I sleep so you can get away. I have you now!" and he caught Uncle Wiggly by the ears.

"Please!" said the bunny rabbit. "Don't spin them!"

"Spin what?" asked the fox. "Oh, yes, I see you have something on a plate. What is it, he asked, cross-like and impudently.

"These are doughnuts, or crullers, as some folks call them, answered Uncle Wiggly. "They were a web around me under the circumstances. Another name is fried cakes. You may take your choice."

"Oh, may I? That's very kind of you, I'm sure," said the fox sarcastically, and unnecessarily. And he dipped the napkin cover off the plate of doughnuts.

"Why, how dare you? You've been biting holes in every one of these cakes! Look! Every one has a hole in it. How dare you offer me cakes like these—all moth-eaten!"

"I didn't bite the holes in the doughnuts," said Uncle Wiggly. "Nurse Jane made them that way. All doughnuts or crullers or fried cakes have a hole in the middle."

"I don't believe you!" snarled the fox. "You have been eating holes in my doughnuts and—"

"Wait! Hold on!" cried Uncle Wiggly. "In the first place, these aren't yours. They're for Grandpa Goosey Gander. And, in the second place, I didn't bite holes in the doughnuts. Nurse Jane made them that way."

"You bit the holes in them, and I'll never take a cake with a hole in it! You can't fool me that way! These doughnuts ought to be all in one piece, without a hole!"

"Oh, yes!" insisted the fox. "And now I'm going to tell you what I want you to do. I want you to hop right back to your bungalow, and bring me some doughnuts without any holes in them. I'll try to get me to eat cakes full of holes! I won't do it! Hop right back and bring me the right kind of doughnuts! I'll wait here for you."

Uncle Wiggly sort of smiled to himself, and he winked one eye at himself and he twinkled his pink nose on one side so the fox wouldn't see it. Then the bunny rabbit said: "All right!"

And with the plate of doughnuts he hopped away as fast as he could hop, leaving the foolish fox waiting there in the woods. And did Uncle Wiggly come back with cakes that had no holes in for the bad chap? Indeed he did not! The bunny rabbit went on to Grandpa Goosey's with the doughnuts, and very glad Grandpa Goosey was to get them, holes and all. Then Uncle Wiggly hopped back home another way so the fox couldn't get him. And for all I know that fox may be waiting yet for fried cakes without holes.

And ever since then, doughnuts have been made with a round ring in the middle.

himself and he twinkled his pink nose on one side so the fox wouldn't see it. Then the bunny rabbit said: "All right!"

And with the plate of doughnuts he hopped away as fast as he could hop, leaving the foolish fox waiting there in the woods. And did Uncle Wiggly come back with cakes that had no holes in for the bad chap? Indeed he did not! The bunny rabbit went on to Grandpa Goosey's with the doughnuts, and very glad Grandpa Goosey was to get them, holes and all. Then Uncle Wiggly hopped back home another way so the fox couldn't get him. And for all I know that fox may be waiting yet for fried cakes without holes.

And ever since then, doughnuts have been made with a round ring in the middle.

THE HOUSE OF THE LORD

Why do Latter-Day Saints Build Temples?

By DR. JAMES E. TALMAGE

Of the Council of the Twelve, Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, Salt Lake City, Utah.

Note: For free copies of other articles of this series, send request to the author.

The Latter-day Saints are known and distinguished as a Temple-building people. They, in common with religious bodies in general, build houses of worship, which for the different sects range from humble chapels to great churches, imposing synagogues, spacious tabernacles and stately cathedrals, but for none of these edifices is the claim advanced that they are Temples in the true and specific sense of the term.

Be it remembered that Temples are not designed for purposes of general assembly or congregational worship as are church buildings in general, but for the administration of sacred ordinances. It is both interesting and instructive to note that this characteristic applies alike to heathen temples and to exclusive sanctuaries reared to the name of the true and living God. In pagan temples of olden time, the altar of sacrifice stood at the entrance, and though devotees thronged about the altar, none but the officiating priests were admitted to the actual shrine within the temple itself.

So also with the Tabernacle of the Congregation which was a portable sanctuary, constructed by the Israelites in their migration from Egypt, and so with the imposing Temples of Solomon, Zerubbabel and Herod, in each of which were spacious courts enclosed by outer walls, with altar and other equipment, within which courts the people congregated, but the sanctuary itself was a relatively small structure, reserved for the most holy ordinances and ceremonial ministry. Similarly the Temples erected and maintained by the Latter-day Saints are reserved for the solemnizing of sacred ordinances, and are distinctively other than meeting-houses used for public worship.

True to the Divine commission laid upon Israel the Nephite colonists created a Temple on the Western Continent as early as 370 B. C., about thirty years after their exodus from Jerusalem. The Book of Mormon informs us that this structure was dedicated after the Temple of Solomon, though greatly inferior in size and splendor (2 Nephi 5:16).

The Latter-day Saints build Temples because they are commanded to do so through the direct word of modern revelation and in this divinely imposed labor they recognize the purpose of God with respect to the salvation and possible exaltation of mankind.

The laws and ordinances of the Gospel so far as required for Salvation—specifically, the individual exercise of saving faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, true submission to baptism by immersion at the hands of one having authority, and to the higher baptism of the Spirit by the authoritative imposition of hands for the bestowment of the Holy Ghost—these requirements may be met and the saving effects thereof secured by the living without Temples. But baptism for the dead, as also the endowment incident to the Holy Priesthood with its boundless possibilities of advancement, in short, administration of the laws and ordinances of the Gospel of Christ requisite to exaltation in the eternal worlds, can be solemnized only in Temples erected and dedicated for these holy purposes, for so the Lord hath declared. See Doctrine & Covenants 124:28-41.

As indicated above, Temples are not for the benefit of the living alone. Existing Temples are maintained for the salvation and exaltation of both living and dead; and the ordinances administered therein in behalf of the dead outnumber many fold the administrations for the living.

Vicarious service for the departed is peculiar to the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, and rightly so, for to this Church has been committed for this high ministry been given. In the last chapter of Malachi we find a vivid description of the condition of mankind in the last days, and a prophetic promise of gladness. On April 8, 1836, in the first Temple erected in modern times, that at Kirtland, Ohio, a glorious manifestation was given to Joseph Smith and Oliver Cowdery, in the course of which Elijah ministered in person to the two modern prophets, saying:

"Behold, the time has fully come, which was spoken of by the mouth of Malachi, testifying that he (Elijah) should be sent before the great and dreadful day of the Lord come, to turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the children to the fathers, lest the whole earth be smitten with a curse. Therefore the keys of this dispensation are committed into your hands, and by this ye may know that the great and dreadful day of the Lord is near, even at the doors." (Doctrine & Covenants 110:14-16).

BOSTONIAN TO OCCUPY BAPTIST PULPIT SUNDAY

The pulpit of the First Baptist Church of Oakland will be occupied tomorrow, both morning and evening, by Dr. O. P. Gifford, a leading preacher of Boston, Massachusetts, and one of the greatest preachers in the Baptist denomination. He will supply the pulpit of the First Baptist Church for five weeks.

On Tuesday the Ladies' Auxiliary of the church will hold their regular monthly missionary meeting. All the young people's organizations of the church have been holding elections of officers and will meet on Tuesday evening for an annual year work.

This evening the class of Filipino boys from the Bible school are entertaining the young people of the church with an impromptu program and a general good time. This class has become a regularly established part of the church activities and is making a fine contribution to the religious and social life of the young people.

ST. JAMES' CHURCH

A musical and young people's service is scheduled for Sunday-night at St. James' Presbyterian. It will be conducted by Harry Richards with his well trained singers and the vocal choir augmented by excellent instrumentalists. The service will be held at 8 o'clock and will feature the song, "Alpha and Omega," by Stainer, "Sing Unto God," Schaeffer, and "The Hallelujah Chorus." A team of young people from the University will be present at the Endeavor meeting and in church, to report on their famous rally at Des Moines. It is a thrilling story told by enthusiastic students who want to make the best investment of their lives possible.

In the morning Dr. John E. Donaldson will preach on the Practical Atheism of many who profess to believe in God but in practice live as if He did not exist.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 31, 1920.

VOTE FOR NAVAL BASE.

Every qualified voter in the city of Alameda should go to the polls today and cast a ballot in favor of transferring to the federal government, through the Navy Department, control of the additional land on the western tidelands which may be required in the construction of the proposed new Pacific Coast naval base. The matter is important. Decided correctly it may bring a great advantage to the city. No citizen should neglect the performance of his duty to vote on this proposition.

Authority has already been granted by the people to convey to the navy a tract of the tidelands required in connection with the original plans of the Helm commission for a naval base. The special reviewing board appointed by Secretary of the Navy Daniels has recommended that a destroyer and submarine basin be added to the naval base and an additional grant of land is necessary. If the land is not used for naval base purposes it will revert to the control of the city.

The naval experts who surveyed the possible locations for a naval base on the Pacific Coast have selected San Francisco bay by a process of elimination. As to the suggested bay sites they prefer Alameda above all others, with Hunter's Point second choice. The assurance that all the land required for a naval base is available in Alameda without cost would be a further great advantage in favor of the Eastbay site. Whether the land shall be offered to the government is the question to be decided today.

Do not neglect to vote. If you have not already cast your ballot when you read this go to the polls and vote in favor of the naval base for Alameda. It will be a vote in favor of a $60,000,000 expenditure for new works and equipment in the city, to say nothing of the new desirable population the construction and maintenance of a home for the Pacific fleet will bring.

THE TRIBUNE ANNUAL.

The 1920 Annual Edition of THE TRIBUNE is issued as a part of today's paper. It should have been delivered today to all regular subscribers of THE TRIBUNE by a special corps of carriers. If by any oversight or error you did not get your copy of the Annual you should report the fact to the circulation department of this newspaper.

We particularly desire that you should read this year's Annual. It speaks for itself. It is the best exponent of its own worthiness. It will be found the best annual edition ever issued by a Western newspaper or by any American paper. For attractive appearance, convenience of form, careful editing and authority of statements, it is unique.

THE TRIBUNE only wishes to say here that it takes considerable pride in this contribution of service to the civic life of Oakland and the other communities of the great Eastbay district. Pride and satisfaction in community service have, indeed, been the main compensation.

The 1920 Annual is a costly publication. No saving has been attempted through inferior material and workmanship. A good quality of book paper has been used. The composition has been carefully and expertly performed. The printing was on a slow-process magazine press. The magazine form and size in which the Annual is bound makes it worthy a place on the library table and among the reference books on the library shelf.

There is much information in the Annual about the city in which you live that cannot be found elsewhere. Your home district is visualized in comprehensive and attractive manner. If you would know your own city thoroughly you should read the 1920 Annual, and if you would send to your friends or relatives in other cities a graphic message about your home in California you can make no happier choice than a copy of the Annual.

Determined to follow up raids conducted in El Centro, Imperial and Calexico, Imperial Valley residents have formed a Committee of One Hundred. The raids, directed at gambling houses and other questionable resorts, were conducted without any knowledge of the city officials in the communities visited and even the deputy sheriffs did not know what they were to do until the time came. The committee claims representation from the entire valley and is pledged to a housecleaning which has not, heretofore, been thought necessary in the chemically pure end of the State.

FRANCE'S VITALITY PROBLEM.

In its announced purpose to devote, for the next five years, the entire attention of its department of health and hygiene to the creation of life, France is taking up again, in tremendously increased interest, a problem it laid down with the war. It is surveying its losses of men in the light of the walks from whence they came and is not underestimating the importance and the difficulties of the task.

Before the war the birth-rate in France was lower than was the rate of deaths. It was partly because the country stood in this light before the world that it was called decadent, pleasure-loving and frivolous, that there was formed a group of men privileged to right a world opinion and to work for the furtherance of French prestige in letters, arts and industries. They represented the new France to whom the country might look in the future, leaders in national thought and inspiration. These were included among those who joined the colors after the first army of the nation's youth had been exhausted.

By the time the war was at its height and the death-toll was the heaviest France had all of its young men in service and, in addition, all of those men thirty to forty-five who were contributing brilliantly to the new reputation for industry and achievement. Some of them waited for the call but the majority enlisted through the same patriotic earnestness that had actuated their peace-time efforts. Here was the best way to serve France.

The new council of birth will find few of these men left. Just as their strain of manhood will be missed in the repopulation of the country their example and endeavor will be missed in the world at large. The youthful and exuberant and the men who would reclaim and advance their country were all but exterminated on the battlefields.

To a large extent the propaganda for a higher birth rate must be directed to two classes from which little may be expected. There is that large and pleasure-loving population among whom the obligations and cares of parenthood are looked upon as handicaps to social position and the pursuit of enjoyment. They are actuated by the same motives today as they were before the war and cannot be expected to listen with willing ears to the pleas of the minister of hygiene and health. They have never done more than live in the France of today; their ideals were abandoned back in the days of the monarchy.

Aside from those influenced by the purely individualistic and selfish motives there are those who have spread and who have listened to the propaganda of the French Socialist party, an out-and-out birth-control campaign. Before the war this argument for family limitation, which had leaped across the borders from Holland, had gained considerable sway in France. It is a part of the Socialist philosophy, a philosophy which has been reflected to a great extent in French government.

There are some indications that the French Socialists and radicals will not stress birth-control for the next few years and it is upon this chance that the new ministry in France is basing so small part of its hopes. Unless the need of the country for manhood can be impressed upon the frivolous and the radical, it is certain that there will be no marked increase in the birth rate and that what increase does come, if any, will be from the ranks of that part of the population which is uneducated and most poorly equipped for parenthood.

The "council of birth," composed of thirty members, working in the face of the high cost of living and under the handicaps mentioned above, is struggling with the future of France. When its five allotted years are ended, it is safe to say it will find its task but started.

After reading the lectures of Sir Oliver Lodge and Sir Arthur Conan Doyle one comes to the conclusion that what is most needed, unless the reader would be lost in a maze of his own concoction, is a set of definitions.

General Pershing proved an admirable ability to protect himself from his enemies. Hence his cheerful fearlessness of those who want to nominate him for the Presidency.

POLITICS AND THE NAVY.

Good citizens must deplore the tendency to convert to partisan and political use issues that are purely scientific and administrative. Politics, it has been said, "is the curse of the peace treaty and covenant." Now there is danger that the questions raised by the charges of Rear-Admiral Sims will be treated by certain congressmen as political.

The resolution offered in the Senate "unqualifiedly" reprobating Admiral Sims for his disclosure of confidential and delicate instructions is obviously premature. The admiral, in fact, had no choice in the matter. The highly confidential instruction was rendered to him in a letter which a Senate committee demanded of the admiral and caused him to give to the public.

It is not necessary for administration senators to rush to the defense of the secretary of the navy. He will have ample opportunity to speak for himself, and it is already plain that he will not lack support from high naval officers. On the relatively trivial question of naval decorations the experts have disagreed. Admiral Mayo has taken issue with Admiral Sims on two or three points at issue, and so has Major-General Barnett of the marine corps.

As to the other Sims charges, they are altogether above and beyond politics and partisanship. They involve the most fundamental questions of the science and art of naval warfare and naval organization and control. When the charges are taken up for inquiry many expert witnesses will be called. It is the part of duty and discretion to pass over little side issues, refrain from faning international suspicions or making mountains of molehills, and lay due stress on the practical and scientific aspects of the controversy. At any rate, small politics should be kept out as unworthy and mischievous. Chicago Daily News.

NOTES and COMMENT

Not wholly reassuring is the news that a new musical instrument has been invented in the general form of a whistle with two tubes, to be played after the manner of a slide trombone. There should at least be closed hours for practicing upon it.

Inadequate college salaries are brought prominently to the fore by the resignation of Professor Davis of the University farm. He was getting $2400 a year, and is to get twice as much at a commercial job of making butter. Educational institutions are thus reminded of the necessity of paying salaries that at least approximate those commanded by roughnecks who never went through college at all.

It is difficult to quite "get" Mr. Gompers when he inveighs against "forced labor" as though there was such a thing in this country. So far from being "forced" labor is seen, in the last few years at least, to have been supplanted, and induced by ready compliance with its own terms.

A serious news item is to the effect that American steel will replace bamboo in Japanese office construction. Marking distinct progress, A people which accept this new material preference to that which has sufficed through ages give evidence of being infected with the modern germ.

A recent government raid rounded up persons bearing such names as "Stefanos A. Wirmankas," "Max Bedacht," "Thekla Roslin," charged with sedition activities. The old idea about the "haven for the oppressed" gets a body blow here.

The potato men say that the high price of spuds can't possibly be helped, there being such an awful scarcity. This, it appears, cannot be disproved; but the onion men are not so lucky. Federal officers have located an enormous supply in cold storage, put in when the price was $2.15 a sack, it now being $4.50 to $5.25 a sack.

The fact that General Wood has accepted a challenge to debate with Senator Poindexter shows that he is willing to lend a hand to promote the gaiety of a people as well as to defend them in war. For a discussion with Poindexter is likely to be diverting.

Not all the presidential candidates are as competent as Governor Lowden, who some time ago announced that he would not contest in California because it had a favored son candidate. General Wood has rushed in where others feared to tread by establishing headquarters in San Francisco. He seems to be losing no point through undue amenities.

A disinclination to accept the recommendations of voters as to the cause of high prices is observable. Official investigations have been instituted. Disclosures have justified such course of action in several instances. As to the cause of price boosts, you can't always rely on the word of the man who is profiting by the boost.

The Federal authorities, we are informed, have taken a hand in the family squabble of the Dempseys. The wife has represented that the champion was a war slacker, and in consequence he is not grata in some centers where the American Legion is strong. There seems to a quivering fear that an injustice has been done him. That righteous fairness may be certain, the government's representatives are to see about it.

The attitude of the farmers, in favoring the return of the railroads to private ownership, serves to remind that their attitude in times past was not so favorable to the roads. Before regulating laws were enacted their Nemesis was the farming populace. But in comparison it appears to be concluded that the old way of running railroads has its points.

SPIRIT OF THE STATE PRESS

There are indications that Imperial Valley is on the eve of one of the greatest oil booms that has ever come to any part of Southern California, outside of the proven fields. With two companies already at work sinking wells, it is reported that no less than ten others are upon the point of beginning work. Some of them will start work in a very short time. No doubt all will be drilling before hot weather.—Holtville Tribune.

Dr. H. S. Fawcett and Professor W. T. Horne of the University of California, college of Agriculture, are in Oroville for the purpose of investigating conditions caused by the recent appearance of citrus blight in orange orchards of this section. According to the opinion of Dr. Fawcett, orchardists should not be alarmed over the recent appearance of citrus blight.—Oroville Register.

Charles C. Fox, leading merchant of French Guich, is also the champion goose hunter of the town. He and his boys killed fourteen geese on Clear Creek, almost within a stone's throw of the Franck & Fox store, this morning before anybody else in the town was up and around.—Redding Searchlight.

A reasonable length of time will be given the Tehama supervisors to secure rights of way for the state highway along the new survey passing through Vina, and if the rights are not secured, the state highway commission will order construction along the original survey, which passes half a mile east of Vina.—Chico Enterprise.

L. C. Fortier succeeded in catching the bears that were destroying the apple trees on Miss Power's Goodyear Creek ranch, above Goodyear Bar. One was a large female, hog fat, and the prime fur coat. Something over 50 pounds of lard came out of the carcass, and the hide is worth fully $10, so Mr. Fortier was well paid for his trouble. A yearling cub traveled with the old bear, and 24 hours after the old one was killed he also felt a victim to his greed for apples.—Grass Valley Union.

POOLS ON THE TREATY.

To the Editor of The Tribune: The opponents of the League of Nations who insist that public opinion is against the treaty and quite in favor of its absolute rejection will find small encouragement in the following figures from a letter in the New York World of January 20:

In the recent college votes there were 51,494 in favor of a compromise for immediate ratification, 48,232 in favor of the treaty without change, 27,970 for the Lodge reservation, and only 13,943 in favor of rejection. In a postal-card poll of returned soldiers and sailors from Southern Massachusetts, 554 were for the league unamended, five for reservations and twelve were opposed. The American Federation of Labor, at its annual meeting in July, voted 29,000 in favor and 400 against.

At a meeting of the national and State officers at Washington in December, the vote was 240 for and only three against. In a nationwide poll of the ministers of the country, Protestant, Catholic and Jewish, the vote was 17,309 in favor and 816 against. In a poll of their readers, taken by fourteen daily newspapers from ten states, forty-eight per cent was for no reservations, thirty-five per cent for the Lodge reservations and seven per cent for no league. The poll of the Portland Oregonian, which is not included in these percentages, was 11,098 for immediate ratification, 665 for compromise, 112 for the Lodge reservations and 228 for no treaty. Furthermore about two weeks ago, the representatives of twenty-six national organizations waited on Senator Lodge and Senator Hitchcock and urged them to compromise their differences and ratify the treaty without delay. Most decidedly "the Senate does not represent the American people on this issue."

ALAMEDANS VOTING FOR NAVAL BASE

Secretary of the Navy Daniels is highly interested in the result of the election in Alameda today to determine action on the proposed naval base site, according to a telegram received today by Eugene Bowles of the Oakland Chamber of Commerce from Joseph Caine, executive secretary of the organization. Mayor Otis will telegraph Secretary Daniels tonight, just as soon as the result of the election is determined.

ALAMEDA, Jan. 31.—Clear weather is helping along the Alameda naval base election today. The vote is expected to be light throughout the morning on account of the half-holiday for most workers this afternoon. For this reason the bulk of the vote will be in this afternoon.

The election is unique in that it is held on a Saturday. This is something of an experiment and was planned to give commuters and other Alamedans out of town during the week ample opportunity to vote. Some commuters, leaving town on the first train and returning late at night, seldom have opportunity to vote between 6 in the morning and 7 at night.

The chamber of commerce election campaign work included the employing of a staff of telephone operators who are busy on the "phones of Alameda" today, urging all Alamedans not to forget to vote. As to the result of the election, the city officials and chamber of commerce people feel confident that the naval base site will be carried by a big majority. It is also predicted that the special proposition of the Alaska Packers' Association will carry.

The affair is intended to aid the club in reconstructing its gymnasium and club rooms, in order to make it one of Oakland's most modern and up-to-date athletic clubs. Prizes are to be awarded to the best costumed and also the most comically dressed.

Those who worked to make the affair a success are: Misses Alice Rappold, Ruth Odenmatt, Nano Jordan, Viola Fenelon, Phoebe Garrison, Catherine Mullen, Consuelo Deleavago, Gladys Bruce, Margaret Dooley, Alma Dowling, Gertrude Dooley, Rose Brady.

BOYCOTT ON MILK WINS IN ALAMEDA

ALAMEDA, Jan. 31.—Capping the announcement by the local sellers of milk that beginning tomorrow the commodity will be sold for 15 cents a quart or 9 cents a pint, the schedule in effect prior to January 1, the Alameda Housewives' League this morning gives out the statement that under a cash-and-carry system milk will be offered for 15 cents a quart within a few days. With the return by local dairies to the former price the leaders in the fight against the high cost of living record what they term "a partial" victory. They declare that entire victory will be theirs when they bring 15 cent milk into Alameda.

Reduction to consumers of milk prices follows a thirty-day boycott sponsored by Alameda Housewives which has covered the city with propaganda. It was proposed to force the dairymen to the rates which prevailed in December. Oakland and Berkeley Housewives after a week's boycott recorded a victory. The prolonged delay in Alameda has suggested to the women a more drastic campaign.

Activities directed toward bringing a milk supply from Oakland were instituted on Thursday, just when a body of leaders was designated to visit various supply stations to investigate the possibility of forcing competition to the Alameda concerns. It has been repeatedly charged by feminine leaders that Alameda was in the grip of an alleged milk combine. They claim the co-operation of the small grocers in distributing whatever supply they may be able to procure.

FURTHER REDUCTION SEEN
"We expect to be able to make an announcement that 13 cent milk will be found in Alameda within a few days," declared Mrs. May Larkin Marston this morning. "We are glad, of course, that milk may now be had at 15 cents. We hope, however, for the greater reduction under a cash and carry system."

"So long as milk meets all the requirements of the Alameda health department, there are no ordinances which would prohibit the bringing in of the commodity from outside," explains Mrs. Marston.

Committees of women are in conference with milk dealers on the proposed low priced milk plan.

WOMAN CHARMS SHOPPERS WITH BEAUTY VISION

Necks were craned on Broadway yesterday afternoon when a mysterious beauty wearing a million dollars' worth of clothes as one more married male put it, appeared amongst the shoppers.

Carrying the atmosphere of the sunny south and smiling an irresistible smile through a set of pearly teeth she charmed the shop girls in the department stores.

Women forgot their manners and deliberately turned around and stared while men nudged one another and stood on the edge of the sidewalk until the vision of beauty passed.

"Who is she?" was the question on everybody's lips but no answer was forthcoming.

The beauty was plainly South American or Spanish but her gown and hat were Paris creations.

Not the least embarrassed by the admiring glances of the throng the mysterious woman flitted from store to store, made her purchases—and disappeared.

If she appears on Broadway again today traffic officers will be necessary to keep the people moving.

Arrests Expected in Helm Death Case

MODESTO, Jan. 31.—Warrants charging Dr. J. J. Knowlton, P. O. McKenna, Mrs. Francis Mayer and Romeo Joseph Paslaqua with the death of Mayme Helm were expected today as the result of a verdict by the coroner's jury, which attributed the girl's death to an attempted criminal operation.

The verdict, which was returned by the investigating jury after one hour of deliberation, says: "Mayme Helm came to her death on the night of January 10 as the result of an attempted criminal operation at the hands of Dr. J. J. Knowlton, P. O. McKenna, Mrs. Francis Mayer—known as Mrs. P. O. McKenna—and Romeo Joseph Paslaqua at the Waterford hotel, Waterford, Stanislaus county, California."

No information charging Paslaqua and Dr. Knowlton had been issued up to early today by District Attorney Brown, but it is thought warrants will be served before tomorrow.

SENATE WILL INAUGURATE PEACE MOVE

WASHINGTON, Jan. 31.—Formal notice was given in the senate today that on Tuesday, Feb. 10, Senator Hitchcock will move to take up the German treaty in open session. The treaty controversy now goes back to the senate as a whole as a result of the collapse of the bi-partisan conference efforts at compromise.

Residents Continue Fight Against Spur

Residents of Fifty-fourth avenue and East Fourteenth street and that vicinity are not satisfied to let rest their opposition to the construction of East Tenth street of a spur track by the Southern Pacific to serve the $2,000,000 plant to be erected by the Federal Wool company, and today made another attempt in injunction proceedings. While the peaceful method was being tried some of those opposed to the spur attempted by use of garden hose and other methods to discourage the men who were at work on the right-of-way. The trouble was not of long duration.

The court assistance was sought by C. H. Schulz, 551 Fifty-second avenue, but as he was not a lawyer no action was obtained. The action brought by Florence and J. A. Martin was dismissed yesterday by Judge A. F. St. Sure. It was the desire of Schulz to get a temporary restraining order until the State Railroad Commission be appealed to for another ruling.

BERKELEY, Jan. 31.—Members of the University of California glee club voted last night to join the Harvard glee club in a concert proposed by the eastern university to be held in Pasadena during the Christmas 1920 vacation. The plan for the Harvard men to come to California is a result of the visit of the eastern football team last New Year. The visitors were so favorably impressed with California's climate that the songsters wish now to visit this State.

Hoover is Favored in Bi-Partisan Canvass

Twenty-six per cent of the voters whom the bi-partisan committee that has been polling California to ascertain the sentiment in regard to Herbert Hoover as a presidential candidate have returned answers so far, and the sentiment is decidedly toward Hoover. The committee said it was surprised at the number who sent replies, as previous experiences along such lines has shown that on an average of about 10 per cent reply. The summary of the percentages as the result of the poll so far is:

He denied he had ever said that he had been "eating a luncheon salted with your tears," referring to Mrs. Smetzer, or that he had told her that "the bitter cry of the human heart is, 'Alone.'"

BURIAL HASTENED IN 'FLU' DEATHS

Public funerals and services for victims of epidemic diseases are prohibited as an added precaution against the spread of influenza, in regulations imposed today on local undertakers by Health Officer Dr. Daniel Crosby.

The rules not only prohibit private services and funerals, but provide for the immediate removal of epidemic victims to undertakers and make funerals obligatory within 48 hours.

Regulations are also provided in the rules, which have been adopted by the health departments of many other cities and passed on by the State Board of Embalmers, for the speedy and careful handling of victims of contagious and infectious diseases.

The number of influenza cases reported to the local Health Department since January 14 reached a total of 646 this morning, with 95 new cases reported yesterday and 65 up to noon today. Two new influenza deaths were reported and two new deaths from pneumonia, bringing the influenza death total to 17 and the pneumonia total to 32.

Although the figures indicate an increase in the epidemic, according to Dr. Crosby, reports of the decrease in the number of school teachers unable to work, and the fact that the help calls are not increasing, point to the fact that the disease is at a standstill.
